

New chef for Creed

Creed Foodservice has expanded its team with the appointment of Millie Morgan as business development chef. Twenty-three-year-old Morgan, who has worked at the two-rose restaurant L'amuse Bouche at the Cotford Hotel, Malvern, and in various chef roles in Alicante, Spain, will be working alongside executive business development chef Rob Owen. They will work closely to deliver new menu innovations for customers.

Morgan said: "After gaining experience in top-end restaurants as well as more casual dining operations in Spain, I was keen to push myself with a new challenge. I'm keen to bring the experience I learned in Spain with grab and go and street food-style products to Creed's customers."

Britvic appoints Goldman

Britvic recently announced the formation of a new role at its incubator company, WiseHead Productions, and appointed Russell Goldman as managing director - GB. Having previously held the role of commercial director for foodservice and licensed for Britvic, he has almost 10 years' experience working for the soft drinks giant.

Britvic GB managing director Paul Graham said: "Russell's experience working within the foodservice and licensed channel means he is perfectly placed to step into this new role. He will be a true asset for WiseHead Productions and will leverage the infrastructure, scale and relationships within Britvic to help secure listings in premium venues and retailers."

Goldman added: "This is an exciting opportunity to lead the development and growth of a dynamic and innovative portfolio of premium brands at a time when consumers are increasingly seeking elevated, healthier and non-alcoholic choices."

Hart will be focusing on the entire portfolio of contracts with the support of newly promoted manager - operations and business support, Szymon Rysz.

Hart said: "I am excited to work with the Artizian team, delivering our simple ideas of building happy teams, cooking fresh natural food and always showing attention to detail. I look forward to playing a part in our continued success."

ANDREW SHEARING

HAYLEY WEAL

Hoshizaki expands UK team

Hoshizaki UK has welcomed Andrew Shearing and Hayley Weal to its UK team. Shearing joins Hoshizaki with a solid foodservice sales background, having previously worked for the likes of Electrolux and Dawson MMP. Within the role of account manager for the south west, he will be covering the day-to-day management of the region, supervising sales activities.

Weal started her career at the Marriott Group in 2010, before moving into another marketing role with Eames Consulting. Two years later and Weal is keen to immerse herself back into the hospitality industry as marketing coordinator.

Simon Frost, director of Hoshizaki UK & Ireland, said: "Both Andrew and Hayley are shining additions to our team. With Andrew's natural sales flair and Hayley's plethora of marketing experience, we are confident that our new colleagues will help Hoshizaki UK continue to go from strength to strength."
